In This Kid's Book the Sun Wants to Take a Day Off!

Sun Needs a Holiday, a new book by Dr. Zee, is released by Dorrance

Publishing Co., Inc. In her astonishing new children's book Sun Needs a Holiday Dr. Zee imagines a world where the sun decides to take a vacation and introduces readers to the mischievous boy who must convince his parents that the sun needs their help. Raaji is an active playful 7-year-old-boy. Like most children his age, he enjoys practical jokes and being a bit of a troublemaker. No matter how many times his family scolds him nothing stops Raaji from constantly "calling wolf."

One day while walking home from school, Raaji is surprised when the sun intercepts his iPod via a satellite dish in the solar system. He begins to hear a strange sound, almost like a voice. After recovering from his initial shock, Raaji is able to talk to the sun, who explains that his name is Rayer. "Sun is only a title," says Rayer. "It is what I do - - it's my job, NOT my name." He explains to Raaji that he is upset at the lack of acknowledgment and appreciation for his hard work.

Feeling frustrated about the lack of recognition, Rayer explains to Raaji that he is going to finally take a much-needed vacation. Will Raaji be able to help Rayer get his holiday? Will his parents believe his outlandish story after all the jokes he has played on them? Find out in the colorful pages of Sun Needs a Holiday, a story sure to be enjoyed by young readers and listeners alike.
